

Curriculum Leadership Center

Mission

The primary mission of the Curriculum Leadership Center (CLC) is to provide a network for curriculum leaders to share and consult with one another on issues of common interest.

The CLC is also a supporter and promoter for enhancing the collaboration amongst school districts in the Southeastern Massachusetts region.

CLC History

The Curriculum Leadership Center (CLC) at Bridgewater State University evolved from the Southeast Massachusetts School/University Consortium which was established in 1987 by representatives from the College and several area school systems. As the Consortium's membership grew, the need for a regional center for curriculum leaders was evident. The Consortium's leadership proposed the establishment of the CLC in 1991 and a grant from the New England Association of Schools and Universities assisted in its development.

The CLC began in September, 1992, with the Southeast School/University Consortium which included more than twenty school systems in the region.

CLC Purpose

The CLC provides a forum for dialogue and debate about curriculum and assessment through:

- Sharing best practice
- Discussing current research
- Exchanging ideas and resources

Grants

CLC offers grants to teachers, administrators, and principals for promising practices. These grants are available to public school districts that are members of the CLC and are awarded to support the development of a curriculum project or unique learning experience.
