People get bullied for many wrong reasons. My cousin has been picked on because he is skinny and small but he can run as fast as a cheetah trying to catch a deadly rattlesnake. Also, at lunch I saw my friend being bullied because he ate a tater roll with juicy canolop. I am picked on because I have buck teeth and I say "rino" like "en" and I still do it and ever one laughs at me. On the bus a new chinese kid came to Fisher and I saw my friends laugh because he looked different so I said "sit with me" and now we are friends. When my dad was my age he wore glasses and he was bullied so he ignored it but that didn't work so he told his teacher and his teacher solved the problem. People are different so I think people shouldn't be bullied.

It is not fair that people are bullied for these reasons. My friend is not that fast and he gets picked on because he can't run around the bases as fast as other people. My friend is great at catching the kick ball but people yell at him because he is not that good at kicking the kick ball. My cousin doesn't have neat handwriting and he gets picked on so I showed him how to hold the pencil and now he writes neater. Even though I helped people being bullied I have been a bully too. It is not fair that people are bullied because everyone is different in the world and people are never going to be the same. It is wrong to bully.
