

Meghan K. McCoy, EdD
Part Time Faculty, Department of Psychology
Manager of Programs, Massachusetts Aggression Reduction Center

Tuesday, November 28, 6-7 p.m.

Title
Cyber Bullying and Digital Behaviors

Description
Coming Soon!

Bio
Meghan K. McCoy, Ed.D. is the Manager of Programs at the Massachusetts Aggression Reduction Center, at Bridgewater State University. Dr. McCoy is also a Part time Instructor of Psychology at BSU. She has a BA in Psychology, a M.Ed. in School Counseling 5-12, and an EdD in Curriculum, Teaching, Learning, and Leadership from Northeastern University. Her work focuses on adult learning, social and emotional learning for secondary and college students, bullying, cyberbullying, and digital behaviors among children, teens, and college students. In working with the MARC program, she provides and conducts training, research, and consultation about bullying and cyberbullying prevention, recognition, and intervention for students, faculty, administration, and parents. Ms. McCoy has presented her work and the work of the MARC program at many state, regional, national, and international conferences. McCoy has also published work in peer reviewed journals.